STARCK BY WARENDORF:

“Duality” kitchen with Techno material combination

This freestanding kitchen island is a prime example of high-tech elegance. The cool effect of the stainless steel fronts is softened by the cream white smooth lacquer used for the niche panels and side-mounted shelves. This furniture concept can be employed to fulfil two different functions. As a generously dimensioned room divider with a practical reach through space, it can be accessed from both sides. Alternatively, when positioned against a wall, its impressive depth of 1 m and the roomy central space of 2.4 m x 0.88 m give it a monumental feel. The contrast between the cream white of the shelf elements and the stainless steel fronts gives the design additional emphasis.

This kitchen “monolith” is accompanied by a functional table with two chrome trumpet feet and a table-top stainless steel sink. The table extends out from below the sink and can also be used as a dining table.
