

STARCK RAVING BRILLIANT

Calling these 'headphones' would be like calling the Death Star a 'nice little runaround'. The futuristic Parrot Zik 2.0s, created by French design genius Philippe Starck, are wireless and touch sensitive. Thus, like an orchestra conductor on a power trip, you can control your music and calls by swiping a finger over the phones' faux-leather cups. Sensors detect when they're rested around a neck, automatically pausing the music, while an app allows you to tune them to a profile created by musicians such as Coldplay, DJ Jazzy Jeff and Starck's new muse, bearded Eurovision star Conchita Wurst. Of course.

£299; parrot.com

